History

Baroness Elizabeth Siglindy Stephen Von Thyssen desired for her own castle to be built in this tropical paradise. She was engaged to the celebrated Jamaican Architect, Mr Earl Levy who had already designed the “Trident Vacation Villas” on seven beautifully landscaped acres bordering a spectacular rocky stretch of Port Antonio.

The construction of this masterpiece was completed in 1979. Mr Levy was inspired by the British Colonial Era style palaces of the 1700s.

It took almost a decade to complete the Grand Dining Room with Levy's concoction, which contains the longest formal dining table that seats 24 persons comfortably. In this breathtaking 47-foot-high ballroom, floored with traditional checkerboard black and white marble is where the Gala Dinners were organized.

The Castle also boasts a Turquoise Pool, a Courtyard and the final touch was a pair of immense stone alligators on guard at the top of the elegant whitewashed stairways.
